Capital University.

Capital University was founded in the year 1850. It was then, and is now, under the control of the Evangelical Lutheran Church as represented by the Joint Synod of Ohio. The object it has in view is a truly liberal education of young men, which can only take place where the fear of God and the instruction in His Word is made the ground-work of all learning and wisdom. With this aim in view, and urged by the great necessity of a College as a Preparatory School for young men who desire to study for the office of the Holy Ministry, our school was founded and connected with an older institution of learning, namely: "The German Evangelical Lutheran Seminary of the Joint Synod of Ohio." This connection it still preserves, retaining, however, its independent organization.

Since 1853 the College continued to perform its humble but important work in the now old Capital University Building, in the northern part of the city of Columbus. A few years ago it was deemed advisable by Synod to accept a very valuable and appropriate location immediately to the east of Columbus. The old college building was disposed of, and a new and greatly improved edifice was erected on the ten acre lot presented to the Institution. A commodious boarding hall is built in the immediate vicinity of the College, which, together with several residences of Professors, and a neat church, now being completed, gives the whole location a lively and inviting appearance. It forms, in fact, already a pleasant little suburb of the city, presenting, however, all the advantages of a quiet rural life. The University grounds are distant from the center of the city about three miles, and are easy of access, being situated on the old well-known National Road. A street railway, now operated to within a mile of the University, and which will, ere long, be extended to our very doors, facilitates the intercourse between Columbus and the College.

The University edifice affords ample accommodations for students—lecture rooms, society halls, and everything that can render such an institution attractive. The design is to have only two students occupy the same room as a study and dormitory. These student-rooms are large enough to afford all the necessary convenience to make them, for the time being, a pleasant home for the occupants.

ORGANIZATION.

This includes the Preparatory or Grammar School, the Collegiate and Theological Departments.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—The object of instruction in this department is to give a solid English education, to lay the foundation for a thorough study of the Classics, Mathematics, and German, and especially to prepare for the regular Collegiate course. The time required in this department will always depend upon the proficiency of the individual student at the time he enters.

Reports, showing the grade of recitations and behavior of the students, will be forwarded to parents or guardians twice a year—at the Christmas vacation, and at the close of the year.

COLLEGE DEPARTMENT.—The regular course in this department embraces a period of four years, and aims at a thorough training upon the foundation laid in the Grammar School, and not merely at conferring the Bachelor's Degree. No student can enter this course unless his attainments are such that he can pursue the studies of the respective classes with advantage to himself.

Students from other institutions must sustain an examination, and bring certificates of honorable dismission.

A report exhibiting the standing in class and conduct of each student, will be sent to the parent or guardian, twice during the year—as in the Grammar School.

In both departments students must pass a thorough examination before they will be admitted into higher classes.

(In the Lectures on History "Swinton's Outlines of the World's History" are followed as a guide. No Text-books are used.)

Remarks on the foregoing Course.

This course embraces the following subjects:

LATIN, GREEK, AND HEBREW LANGUAGES AND LITERATURE.

The studies of this department embrace a select series of Greek and Latin classics, accompanied by progressive exercises in the analysis and composition of the languages, and a course of lectures on Mythology, Roman and Grecian Antiquities, etc., exercises in Latin and Greek Composition, throughout the entire course. The study of Hebrew is begun in the Senior year and continued throughout the Theological Course.

MATHEMATICS.

In this department the course embraces a complete series of Pure and Applied Mathematics, and the aim will be to impart a clear and comprehensive knowledge of the principles, and to familiarize them by thorough practice. In this connection the study of Theoretical Mechanics and Natural Philosophy is also pursued.

HISTORY.

The endeavor in this department will be to conduct the student through a careful review of General and Sacred History, to incite him to investigation, and to give some insight into the philosophy of history.

GERMAN.

Much attention is paid to this study, which extends through the Preparatory and Collegiate Departments. Latin, Sacred History, Catechism, and, of course, German are taught mainly by means of the German language. It includes Grammar, Reading of the best Selections in Prose and Poetry, Declamation, History of German Literature and Compositions.

ENGLISH LITERATURE AND PHILOSOPHY.

Through the whole course due attention will be given to studies in this department, embracing a course of Composition, Mental and Moral Science, Logic and Rhetoric. Pains will be taken to train students to think clearly, and express thoughts correctly.

DEBATES, ETC.

Weekly debates and exercises in composition and declamation are held. In these all the College students are required to take part.

DEGREES.

The Degree of Bachelor of Arts will be conferred upon students who complete satisfactorily the above course. The Master's Degree is conferred upon graduades of three years' standing, who have pursued professional studies, and have proved themselves worthy of the honor.

DISCIPLINE.

In the government of the Institution, the Faculty keep in mind that most of the students are of an age which renders some substitute for parental superintendence absolutely necessary. Considering, therefore, the government of the students as a substitute for the regulations of home, they endeavor to bring it as near to the character of parental control as the nature of the case will admit, and to attain this end, not wholly nor chiefly by constraint and dread of penalty, but by the influence of persuasion and kindness. In the College, however, as well as in the family or community, there may be perverse individuals whom nothing but the fear of penalty will influence. In respect to such, the Faculty, standing in the place of parent or guardian, consider themselves bound to see that the student be kindly and faithfully advised and admonished. If this correction prove insufficient, regard for the best interest of such young men, and proper care for the other members of the Institution, require that they should be removed. They have forfeited all claims on the Institution, by violating the indispensable conditions on which its advantages are to be enjoyed, and will, therefore, be forthwith returned to their parents or guardians.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

The students are required to attend prayers every morning and evening in the College Chapel, and public worship on Sunday, in one of the Lutheran churches, unless their parents or guardians direct otherwise.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two Literary Societies—the Homonoia (English) and the Germania (German) connected with the College, which hold weekly meetings during term time, and possess valuable libraries of select and miscellaneous books. Large halls, well furnished, give ample accommodations for these existing auxiliaries of college education.

German Evangelical Lutheran Seminary.

This Institution has, with a few brief intermissions, been in successful operation since 1830. A very large proportion of the ministers representing the Lutheran Church in Ohio, and on the borders of adjoining States, were prepared for the ministry through its instrumentality. It is under the general supervision of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Ohio and adjacent States, and under the special control of a Board of Directors. Although this Board constitutes a part of the Board of Trustees of Capital University, it has an independent organization, and regulates its own affairs.

1. The regulations respecting terms, vacations, boarding, rooms, deportment, and other external matters, are, in nearly all respects, the same as those of Capital University.

2. The course embraces a series of Lectures in the usual branches of Exegetical, Historical, Systematic and Practical Theology. In the selection of text-books due reference is had to the original design of the Institution as a Seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, as its name implies and its constitution requires; the principles inculcated being those of the Lutheran Confessions or Symbols. A special opportunity is afforded weekly for practical exercises in Homiletics and kindred matters.

3. The German and English languages are both taught, and both are used as vehicles of instruction. This rule was adopted by the Board in accordance with the instructions of the Synod, the spirit and design of the founders, and the actual wants of the Church. Thus the benefit of the lectures can be enjoyed by those conversant with either language.

4. The regular course requires three years' attendance. It is earnestly desired that all who have the ministry in view should attend the entire course. Exceptions can be made only in peculiar cases.

5. Satisfactory evidence of good Christian character and standing, of promising talent and devotion to the Church, is required as a qualification for admission. Without such testimonials no one need apply.

6. No charge is made for tuition.

7. A society is organized among the members of the Theological Class for mutual benefit. It is called the Schmidt Theological Society, after one of the venerated founders of the Institution. The exercises of this association are, Practical Homiletics, Criticism, and the discussion of theological and practical questions.

8. Indigent young men, possessing the necessary qualifications, are supported mainly by a Synodical Education Society, which has thus far been a great blessing to the Church.

9. A library, containing about 4,000 volumes, is at the service of the members of the Institution, under certain restrictions.

10. According to a resolution of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio, convening in Allegheny City, October 18th, 1882, a was instituted by the Board of Directors, and is now in operation. The students of this department are subject to all the rules and regulations governing the Seminary proper. The course of study, requiring an attendance of two years, is subjoined, and will show the educational facilities therein offered. All instruction in this department is in German.

Regulations of Capital University.

1st. Students rooming in the College building are required to rise at 6 A. M., during winter, and at 5½ A. M. during summer, and to retire at 10 P. M., when the house will be locked, and all lights in students' rooms must be extinguished. Those not in the building at that time are required to account therefor, on the following day, to the Resident Professor.

2d. Students must be prompt in attention to duties, as notified by the bell: and a quiet gentlemanly demeanor is at all times to be carefully observed.

3d. House-worship will be held daily, from October till March, at 7 A. M. and at 7½ P. M., and from March till October, at 6 A. M. and at 7½ P. M. All students are required to attend this service.

4th. Whenever any student is absent from evening worship, whether with or without excuse, he shall personally announce his presence to the Resident Professor between 9:45 and 10 P. M.

5th. Study hours extend from 7½ A. M. until 12½ P. M., from 1½ until 5 P. M., and from 7½ until 10 P. M. During these hours, as also between the hours of 10 P M. and the time for rising, students must be in their rooms, unless engaged in recitation, or excused by special permission.

6th. No noise that would be offensive in a well regulated private family, will be tolerated in the College building. Vocal and instrumental music may be practiced only during recreation hours.

7th. Cleanliness and neatness, in and about the house, will be strictly required; everything interfering therewith will be considered a serious offense. No one is allowed to throw the sweepings of his room, water, or anything of that kind, out of the window. Students are directed to keep their rooms in good condition generally.

8th. When prevented from attending recitations, on account of sickness or otherwise, students are expected to report the fact with as little delay as possible, or to send information through others.

9th. Damage to the property of the Institution must be paid for by the person doing the injury. Students are held responsible for damage done to their rooms, ordinary wear and tear excepted.

10th. Students shall avoid all diversions or amusements that are calculated to abstract their minds from their proper calling, or are at all doubtful in their moral tendencies.

11th. It is earnestly advised, that no student, placed by his parents, guardian or by the church, under our immediate supervision, associate with the other sex any further than the ordinary proprieties of life require, or form any matrimonial engagement before the completion of his studies. Neglect of this advice may become cause for discipline, and, in the case of beneficiaries, for withholding the aid of the Institution Treasury.

12th. All students, placed under the care of the authorities of the Institution, are required regularly to attend divine service in one of the Lutheran churches, if members of the Lutheran Church, or in whatever church their parents or guardians may designate, if they desire otherwise. The practice of attending services, other than those designated, is contrary to rule, and is not allowed, unless, by way of exception, with special permission from the Resident Professor.

13th. No student under 18 years of age is allowed to use tobacco in any shape or form, without written permission from his parents or guardian.

14th. For three violations of these rules students are liable to admonition before the Faculty; six violations in one term will cause the dismission of the offender from the Institution. In more grievous offenses against order and morality, students will be privately admonished, temporarily suspended, or wholly dismissed, as the Faculty may consider best for themselves and the Institution.
